NUMBER 32

UK May Give Special Courses For Negroes

Negro students may be allowed to take laboratory courses at UK during special hours, pending final contract negotiations between the State Board of Education and the University board of trustees, according to Attorney General A. E. Funk.

The announcement followed a conference with Dr. H. L. Donovan, University president; Gordic Young, assistant state supervisor of public instruction; and M. B. Hollifield, assistant attorney general.

Health Workshop Enrolls Over 100

The Health Education Workshop, which got underway last Monday at the Jefferson Davis Elementary School, has enrolled over 100 persons, according to Dr. C. W. Hackensmith, director of the department of physical education and immediate supervisor of the workshop.

More than 50 Kentucky counties are represented in the project which is jointly sponsored by the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association and the Departments of Hygiene and Physical Education of the University.

The workshop committees have chosen for their theme, "The Interpretation of the New State Code for Health and Physical Education from the Standpoint of Health, Service, Healthful School Aids, Health Instruction, Physical Education, and Recreation."

Dr. D. Oberstetter, Chairman of the Department of Physical Education at Ohio State University and a national specialist in the field of Health Instruction, will lecture today at 6:30 p.m. and Saturday from 1-1:50.

The general purpose of the workshop, as outlined by Dr. Hackensmith, is to improve the health and physical fitness of Kentucky school children through better informed and prepared teachers.

Objective

The immediate objective is to assist the Kentucky State Department of Education in the implementation of the Code for Health and Physical Education; to prepare each teacher or administrator to do his part better in the organization of the school health program; and to prepare each official representative so that he will be better qualified to return to his county to guide and prepare others to carry on the work of health education in the school.

Law Suit

It is the state's answer to a suit filed in the Lexington Federal District Court by Lyman T. Johnson, Negro high school teacher in Louisville, demanding admission to the University. "We want to get this set up before we have to answer that," Funk said.

Kenny Rollins will sing on the same program.

In case the basketball game is postponed, Robinson will speak Friday night.

Bowman Parties For Fall Semester To Be Arranged

"Although the lounge and game-room of Bowman Hall will not be open to women visitors at all times, certain days and hours will be designated for that purpose, and a chaperone will be provided," Dean Kirwan announced yesterday.

Although plans for informal recreation and for formal dances and parties cannot be put into effect until the fall semester, University men will be permitted to entertain visitors in the recreation rooms at that time, the dean said.

Two first-run pictures, "The Story of Tschikovsky," and "Rocky," with Roddy McDowell, will be sponsored by the Cooperstown Playground Committee to raise funds for equipping the children's recreation area in Cooperstown.

The double feature will be presented at the regular price of 60c at the State Theater on July 11, 12, 13, and 14.

One third of the advance sale of ticket proceeds will go toward building a playground for the Cooperstown children. Grover Jones, chairman of the Playground Committee, said tickets are on sale at the University book store and at ticket booths in the lobbies of the Ben Ali and Kentucky theaters.

Proficiency Exams To Be Next Week

Lookie Here--Semester's Over! If Figures Don't Lie, That Is...

By Stanley J. Schill

Surprise! Look here. We just started this summer semester money business, and now we suddenly come to the realization that after only three weeks of classes, there are just 36 days left to this term, or 31 days of classes.

For you lucky or unlucky, depending on the way in which you look at it, persons who have only afternoon classes a quick glance at those red and black numbers on the wall, tells us that you only have 25 school days left. Imagine that!

To show the math department that their efforts have not been in vain, let's break it down.

Here's The Brain Work

Our 36 days suddenly becomes 864 hours, or 51,840 minutes. In seconds, that comes out to 3,110,400. Now that isn't much is it, considering it takes a whole second to say Mississippi? All you have to do is say Mississippi three million times, and the quarter is over. We don't recommend it however—it might interrupt some instructor while he's lecturing. Besides your mouth gets awful dry after all those Mississippi's, and you probably won't get much sleep.

Getting away from the Mississippi River for a while, let's see how our school days break down, or is it decompose?

Well, 31 days is 744 hours, or 44,640 minutes, or 2,678,400 seconds. So we won't become too involved, let's

Extension Center Slated To Open In Covington

The University's new Northern Extension Center in Covington will be open September 14, Dr. W. C. Wesley, director, announced.

The Center is to provide regular college courses for freshmen and sophomore students, and special courses for which there may be a demand. The special courses may include informal non-credit courses as well as courses for graduate students.

For the year 1948-49 a full freshman course will be provided. This will include English, history, mathematics, a foreign language, and a science. In 1949 it is proposed to add the sophomore year so that it will be possible for students to take two full years of college at the Center.

Graduate courses for the first year will probably be limited to history and education, though special courses will be given as the need arises.

A full-time student will be allowed to carry a maximum of 15 semester hours.

Part-time students who wish to register for more than two courses during the same semester should seek the advice of the director. Both full-time and part-time students will be entitled to the same counseling and guidance as students on the University campus.

Teacher Shortage To Remain Acute

The shortage of qualified teachers in Kentucky continues, but the outlook for this fall is somewhat better than the spring, according to Dr. M. E. Ligon, director of the University's teacher placement bureau.

Dr. Ligon said that the teacher shortage would be particularly acute in rural one-room schools. The situation will be worst in mountain counties where one-room schools are necessary because of lack of roads, he said, and most qualified teachers will not accept positions in these remote areas.

University Grad Tells Of Printing Method

E. R. Muehler, a news editor for the Chicago Star and former UK journalism graduate, presented and explained samples here yesterday of the "electric typewriter" printing method of his paper.

The method, a process of zinc engraving, has been used by all Chicago dailies since the printers' strike began last November.

This process requires three to four hours for a story to "hit the streets," Muehler said. By the use of halftones, this time can be cut to 30 minutes.

About thirty minutes is required for an ordinary printing process, but the loss of time does not matter since every Chicago paper is strike-bound, the editor said.

Donovan States Need Of Educating Germans

"The role of American educators in Germany is to see that the basic principles of democracy are put into effect by the Germans themselves," said Dr. H. L. Donovan, University president, Wednesday night.

Dr. Donovan spoke on "Democratization of the German Educational System" at the second of a series of lectures on international affairs, basing his remarks on his observations as an educational adviser to the U. S. Military Government in Germany.

German universities have been completely de-Nazified by German and American educators, and neither the professors nor the students in these universities have any desire to return to Nazism, he said.

"The destruction of their buildings was not the only destruction wrought upon the German universities by Nazism," he said.

"Before the war ended, he (Hitler) had complete control of every one of these institutions. The Germans and Americans have completely de-Nazified these universities and today I believe they are in the hands of those who hate Nazism almost as much as we do," the president stated.

'Carmen' Deadline Is Tomorrow Noon

Cats-Oilers Tangle Tonight In Final Game Of U.S. Series

History Making Basketball Battle To Be Witnessed By 15,000 Fans

Kentucky's history-making Wildcats tangle with their Olympic teammates, the Phillips 66'ers in the rubber game of their three-game "World Series of Basketball" tonight on Stoll Field before 11,000-plus fans, the largest crowd ever to witness a basketball game in the South.

The Wildcats lost the first game at Tulsa, 60-52, but came back brilliantly to win a 70-69 double-overtime victory at Kansas City last Friday night.

Dr. Ligon said that the teacher shortage would be particularly acute in rural one-room schools. The situation will be worst in mountain counties where one-room schools are necessary because of lack of roads, he said, and most qualified teachers will not accept positions in these remote areas.

Test Messed By Pest

As Dr. Plummer strolled into his journalism class Wednesday morning, there was an ethereal expression on his face. He was prepared to give the test that would have his students gnawing on their fingernails.

Soon, however, it was Dr. Plummer who was gnawing nails. When he righted his lecture box, preparatory to presenting question No. 1, he discovered a gigantic toad grinning at him from beneath the rostrum.

Both soon recovered from the initial shock, and pursued mutual interests while the class labored over the quiz.

Dancing Class Is Still Open

The course in social dancing offered by the Department of Physical Education is still open for students or faculty members, according to Mrs. Revell Shaw, summer term director of the women's physical education department.

The class is almost equally divided between women and men and is now in its sixth lesson. Mrs. Shaw said anyone who has just had the fundamentals of ball room dancing is especially urged to join the class now before it moves into the more complicated forms of popular dancing.

Courses are offered without charge from 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

'Lover, Come Back To Me' Sings Phyllis, Lonely Monkey

By John R. Cox

There is no yellow ribbon around her neck, but poor Phyllis is pining for her lover who is far, far away.

Phyllis is a monkey who belongs to the University and resides on the fifth floor of the Biological Sciences building. John is her would-be lover who just refuses to cooperate with the wishes of Phyllis and staff members of the anatomy and physiology departments.

Phyllis Needs A Mate

Miss Mini Wiedeman, instructor in anatomy and physiology decided one day last week that Phyllis lacked something—namely, a mate. She went to Joyland Park and picked out John as a likely prospect. John, who evidently doesn't like to have his friends picked out for him, decided this was one of those days his mother had warned him about. He fought a gallant battle, but was finally caught by the insistent "Dan Cupids."

John was brought back to the B.S. building and introduced to Phyllis. She beamed with joy, but Johnny took one look and uttered an emphatic "No." Taking advantage of a quick opening, he leaped out of the cage and with a cry equivalent to "Up, up, and away," he scampered up the side of the building.

John Still Around

Three freshmen and 60 volunteer students joined the staff in a chase around the grounds, but John would not be caught. He has been spotted in the neighborhood several times during the past week, and Prof. J. M. Edney of the Zoology Department has been putting out food for him in an effort to entice him back, but John is firm in his conviction that Phyllis is not the girl for him.

Where's John?

In an interview with Miss Mini Wiedeman Wednesday morning, Phyllis refused to venture a guess as to the reason for John's strange behavior toward her. Miss Wiedeman said, however, that Phyllis has been staring moodily out the window for the past week and just has not been herself.

Said Phyllis, "The ape can drop dead."

But as we left Phyllis to her determined silence, I am sure I heard her sigh, "Oh, Jo-hnnny!"

Johnny, it seems, is one guy who just doesn't believe in monkey business.

Library Workshop To End Saturday

The Workshop for Beginning Librarians will end the third and final week of its program tomorrow, according to Miss Mary Routh Buchanan, of the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore, director.

Miss Marie Helm, librarian at Western Kentucky State Teachers College, and chairman of the state board for the certification of librarians is visiting consultant this week.

Speakers

Speakers during the week include Miss Laura K. Martin, Dr. Robert H. Dolly, and Miss Azile Woodford of the Library Science Department of the University, and Mrs. Gorhe Young of Frankfort, former State Supervisor of Libraries.

Club Formed

Miss Buchanan said that the group has organized a club in order that they might follow up the work that has been done in the Workshop. Mrs. H. W. Paxton has been elected president, Miss Evelyn Alexander, treasurer, and Mrs. Willena Broyles, secretary. Meetings have been planned for the Kentucky Librarians Association and the Kentucky Education Association conventions.

The Workshop, the first ever held in Kentucky and a new idea in the field of Library Science, has an enrollment of 27 members representing 21 counties and one out-of-state librarian.

One-Fourth Of Vets In Engineering School

Of the 2,556 veterans attending the summer session, slightly more than one-fourth are enrolled in the College of Engineering, according to figures released by the Personnel Office.

The enrollment of veterans by colleges follows: Arts and Sciences, 529; Agriculture and Home Economics, 295; Engineering, 641; Law, 151; Education, 96; Commerce, 376; and Graduate School, 468. Forty-five women veterans are among the veterans enrolled.

More than half the veterans—52.5 percent—are married, and 43.7 percent of them have children.

By classes, the veteran students include 444 Freshmen, 434 Sophomores, 750 Juniors, 692 Seniors, 468 Graduate students, and 28 Special students. There are 2,181 Kentuckians and 375 students from other states among the veteran enrollment.

Republican Club Lauds Convention

Hoge Hockensmith, president of the Republican Club, lauded the out-come of the Republican convention last week as a victory for the young voters of the country.

"This is a banner year for the young voters in the Republican party to get out and do a lot of good work for their party and for the country," Hockensmith said.

On behalf of the club, Hockensmith invited all students who are interested in a Republican victory in November to attend the meeting of the organization. He said that a lot of people will be jumping on the bandwagon before the election.

"Get on the bandwagon while it counts," Hockensmith urged.

The University Republican Club has over 100 members on the campus.

Sports World Watches

The eyes and ears of the sport world are focused on Lexington tonight, where mounting excitement has been growing for weeks in anticipation of what will end in either the thrill of a lifetime or home-break for the Wildcats and their followers.

Kentucky's dramatic last-second victory over the Oilers last Friday has added even more to the importance of tonight's game.

The tall, experienced Oilers, hailed as the greatest among teams in the world, and the Wildcats, called by many the greatest college aggregation ever assembled, play tonight for what will probably be the basketball championship of the World.

The Oilers are All-American players and competitors to the man; tall, experienced, calm in the face of battle, and acquainted with all the tricks to be learned in a too and brilliant career, and it may be many a moon before the singing of their praises dies into sports oblivion.

Greatest College Team

On the other hand, the Wildcats are young and excitable, the fire-runners and greatest exponent of a new era of fire-brand, speed-crazy, race-horse basketball, the first college team to ever enter the Olympics, and in the eyes of many long-time observers the greatest college team ever assembled.

And above all, they are great gentlemen. They, too, are not out to be forgotten by men and women who place more importance upon sports than upon atom bombs and the iron curtain.

Fans See Oilers Scrimmage

In a practice session open to the public Wednesday afternoon, Coach Rupp introduced the Oilers. Coach Bud Browning, who in turn introduced the members of his team.

Each player was greeted with a tremendous ovation, and Coach Bud Browning probably drew the greatest applause. In the short scrimmage that followed, the Oilers' amazing shooting and ball-handling kept the audience constantly oohing and aahing.

The Kentucky team is anxious to prove last week's victory was a fluke and the Oilers are equally anxious to return to the win column after losing to a college team for the first time in over three years.

The presence of Beard will only make the situation more thrilling. The little All-American scored 21 points at New York in the Olympic trials final, but was held to two points by a tight defense and an ailing leg at Tulsa, when his teammates went down in defeat, 60-52. Kentucky rosters know that one ailing heart or a recurrence of his leg injury will stop Ralph Beard.

Playing brilliantly without the services of Ralph, the Wildcats made

The Spice Of Life

By Rubye Graham and Jack Feierabend

No pen.

Can't think—
We stink!

This was one Monday that everyone got over his weekend follies in a hurry. At 7:00 o'clock Monday morning there was more than one student being carried into class.

The usual college crowd was conspicuous (as usual) by being absent at the recent Cotillion dance at Joyland. What's matter?

Jim Brockenborough had a date with Mini Chindler recently. Bud Hott and Vivienne Rambo tied the knot last weekend. Congratulations!

Things seem to be cooling off between Bob Lee and Tula Fish, according to the secret services at the Sig Ep house. Maybe someone can contribute an ice cube!

A carload of Phil Delts arrived in town Monday night for a delayed Fourth.

Do you know what the beer cans sang after a certain bunch of University kids left Bownesboro Beach last Saturday? "We Cover the Waterfront." That is a gross understatement. The river was practically stepped up.

The Sigma Chi's latest count of white shoes reveals a decline in population to 92.

Jack Gutermuth is a regular these days in the Horseshoe.

Someone is needed to fan the flames between Jo Anne Talley and Claude Sprawls. Don't worry, boys, it's no steady proposition.

Sweet young things (not to mention names) are doing flips in the music department over the return of Al Frey. Tough luck, kiddies, he's only here for the summer.

You gals should look up Jim Gardiner, a Delt from Illinois, who amuses the Horseshoe crowd, regularly with his cartoons. Wait until he tries to put a jockey on one of the murels!

Have you played checkers yet in the Horseshoe? It's simple with their new sugar cubes and place mats.

Dudley Saunders and Jimmie Linville are looking for dates. Saunders says he spends half his time calling up girls and the other half listening to their long, drawn-out explanations as to why they can't go out.

Cats-Oilers Tangle

many wonder what would have happened had the little All-American been in the game. That question will probably be answered tonight, providing his teammates can repeat their brilliant performances from the Kansas City game.

It is still doubtful whether fiery little Ralph Beard will be back in the starting lineup. The Little Man looked very good in practice this week, but is still bothered by a bad ankle, seriously hurt in Cincinnati last December 13, and aggravated in the game at Tulsa. Should Beard not be ready by tonight, either Cliff Barker or Dale Barnstable could start at guard. Boryla, or Holland, who did such an excellent job guarding Barksdale half the game at Kansas City, will probably get the nod at forward, should Barker go to the guard position.

To big Alex Groza falls the job of stopping "Footballs" Kurland for the third straight game, a performance by a collegian that few thought possible. Even if Alex stops Kurland and someone stops Barksdale, the Oilers have eight more men, any one of whom could turn the tide in Phillips' favor. Great players like Jesse "Oab" Renick, Gerald Tucker, Gordon Carpenter and Ed Beisser, every one a great shot from the floor, fine rebounders, and great defensive players.

For the second game in a row Alex Groza, five inches shorter than Kurland, outscored the Oiler Pivotman, this time 16 points to 13. The battle between the two giants was about equal at Tulsa, Groza getting 11 and Kurland 10. The two battled it out equally for rebounding honors.

But at Kansas City the Wildcat center hogged rebounds doggedly and guarded Kurland so viciously that the Oiler ace had to do all of his shooting on the run, hitting only four of 26 shots. Groza took 12 shots and hit six of them and four foul shots.

Biggest thorn in the Wildcats' side hasn't been the giant Kurland, but Don Barksdale, 6'6" Negro star of the Oakland Bitters.

Barksdale scored 12 of the Oilers' first 15 points in Kansas City and a total of 22 for the game. He scored 9 in the first game at Tulsa.

His sharp-shooting, rugged rebounding and tight defensive play in both games are credited by many as the factor that beat the Cats at Tulsa and kept the Oilers in the running at Kansas City, where he hit 9 out of 17 field goal attempts.

Coach Rupp was high in his praise of Joe Holland's defensive play during the time he was guarding Barksdale.

Let's Beat The Oilers Again

The brilliant game which the Wildcats played against the Phillips Oilers last Friday night was not only a credit to themselves, to their coach, and to their University, but also a credit to collegiate basketball.

The Wildcats proved, without a doubt, that the spirit to win, the "old college try," has not disappeared as many persons seem to think it has.

Despite the superior height and experience of their opponents and the fact that one of their best players was benched because of an injury, the Wildcats fought every second of the way. It was the fighting heart of the Kentucky team which spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

We said some months ago that this year's basketball squad represents the best team Kentucky has ever had and perhaps the greatest outfit in the history of collegiate basketball. We wish to repeat that statement.

Again we congratulate each member of the team and of the coaching staff. May you win tonight by even a greater margin.

Letters

Editor, the Kernel:

Why is it that journalism students aren't allowed to obtain teacher's certificates without attending at least one extra semester of school?

Under the present system, ABJ students aren't permitted to count journalism as a major for a secondary school certificate although that subject is taught in all high schools along with other related subjects. It would be progressive and desirable for journalism majors if there were a program arranged whereby an ABJ and a teacher's certificate could be procured in four years of college.

JOURNALISM STUDENT

Editor the Kernel:

It would certainly help the student body as a whole if fruit juice stands were installed in the book store, as they are in the men's dorm, to stall off wilting away in this hot weather.

Just a suggestion.

THIRSTY

Editor, the Kernel:

When a freshman student enters this University, he is supposedly oriented to the various clubs and campus activities. Supposedly, that is.

Sure, he's shown the library and the short-cut to classes on opposite sides of the campus, but at least two-thirds of the freshmen students never know what is actually going on.

No, editor, I'm not a freshman. I'm a junior who has been in this school for three years. And I still don't belong to one club. It isn't because I haven't tried, either. It's because there's no where that I know of to find out how to join the clubs, or how to get in touch with those in the know.

AN INDEPENDENT WHO HASN'T JOINED THE INDEPENDENTS

He: "Can I turn off that soft light?"
She: "Sure."
He: "Now that it's all dark in here, can I ask you a question?"
She: "Oh, yes."
He: "Do you think this luminous tie is worth two bits?"

Here's to the ships of our navy. Here's to the ladies of our land. May the former be well rigged, and the latter be well-manned.

Joe Holland's Goal Gives Wildcats 70-69 Overtime Win Over 66'ers

Kansas City Win Evens Cage 'World Series'

Joe Holland's field goal in the last five seconds of play gave the Kentucky Wildcats a thrilling 70-69 double-overtime victory over the Phillips Oilers last Friday before 7,000 fans in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium. The victory evened the series at one game for each team.

The score was tied 11 times and the lead changed hands 15 times during the heated 90-minute encounter that was punctuated by two episodes of fireworks.

With 15 seconds remaining in the first overtime period and the score tied 66-66, Kenny Rollins got the ball on a fast-break and was streaking for the basket, when a firecracker exploded. Rollins and everyone else concerned thought the game had ended and all activity stopped. One can only speculate whether the Cats would have scored or not.

The next firecracker episode came with a dozen seconds remaining in the second overtime, and the 66ers leading 69-68. Boryla slapped the ball from the hands of an Oiler player and Joe Holland picked it up and streaked for the basket. Half way there another firecracker exploded but Holland went on to make an easy lay-up shot and send Kentucky in front 70-69. Everyone thought the game was over, but actually several seconds remained to play.

Oilers Take Early Lead

The Oilers, with Don Barksdale scoring 12 points, jumped into an early 15-6 lead in the first five minutes of the game. With Barnstable and Boryla hitting two fielders each, the Cats tied the score 15-15 after 12 minutes and then went into the lead on Boryla's push shot, 18-16.

Joe Holland took over the job of guarding Barksdale and held him to one point the remainder of the half. Groza and Boryla continued to pace Kentucky to a 35-33 lead at the half. The Oilers opened the second half with a rush to tie the score 39-39 after five minutes had elapsed. A crisp shot by Barksdale after eight minutes of play put the Oilers ahead for the first time since midway in the first half.

Groza immediately tied the score and sent the Cats in front with quick points. Jim Line and Barnstable started hitting and with five minutes remaining gave the Wildcats their longest lead of the game, 61-54.

Nash, Kurland, Pitts and Barksdale hit in that order to tie the score 61-61 as the regular playing time ended, forcing both teams into the first five-minute overtime.

Groza paced the Kentucky scorers with 16 points, followed by Boryla with 13 and Barnstable with 10. Barksdale was high for the Oilers with 22, and Kurland had 13. The Wildcats outscored the 66ers from the field 27 field goals to 25, hitting 31 percent of their 87 attempts at the basket. The Oilers hit 25 of 84 shots for a 29.7 percent average.

First Overtime Period

Tied 61-61 at the end of the regular playing time, Holland and Rollins hit fielders and Groza a foul shot to put Kentucky ahead, 65-61, but Carpenter and Barksdale came back with goals to cut the lead to 66-65. A double foul was called on Carpenter and Barnstable, the former tying the count at 66-66. Barney missed his toss and the overtime ended.

Second Overtime
Carpenter made a foul shot and Barksdale a field goal to give the Oilers an early 69-66 lead. Groza dumped in a rebound shot with nearly two minutes left. The Oilers put on their freeze then and turned down several free tosses in order to keep the ball.

With twelve seconds left Boryla slapped the ball out of the Oilers' hands, Holland grabbed it, and started racing for the basket. The firecracker exploded but Holland went on and scored the decisive goal on an easy lay up. The game ended seconds later, neither team sure of which had won.

Much sought after are girls with blue eyes and greenbacks. He swore that he loved her, that nothing was too good for her, that he would go through hell for her. So he did... he married her.

Tain't no reason whatsoever for MR. AND MRS. JOE HOLLAND to pose with a batch of fire crackers—unless it be that Joe's game-winning field goal in last week's tilt with the Oilers came in the closing seconds of a fireworks-punctuated second overtime period. Then too, Joe hopes to drop some of his own bombshells in tonight's fracas.

Boryla Believes Cats-Oilers Game Greatest He Ever Saw

By John R. Cox

"The greatest game ever played." That is the description of last Friday night's game between the Kentucky Wildcats and Phillips Oilers given by Vince Boryla, former Notre Dame player on the Wildcat Olympic squad. He added that it was a real team victory, with no real standouts among the players, although Dale Barnstable in his opinion "played a really fine game."

Ray Lumpp, Boryla's roommate while they are here on the campus and former New York University player, agreed with all that Vince had to say and added "you have to be mighty good to beat a bunch of big boys like that."

There was some contrast however on their views of the University campus. "Your campus," drawled Boryla, "is much more compact, but not near as beautiful as Notre Dame's. There is nothing here to compare to the lakes and trees that adorn the campus there."

Chimed in Lumpp, "I never knew there was any place like this. Why, compared to New York U. this place is like a country club. I have never seen anything so beautiful! At NYU, our campus is the sidewalk, and there is nothing to compare with this for compactness."

Ray is a graduate of New York University, but other than his trip to London with the Olympic squad, he has no immediate plans for the future. He has received some offers to play basketball, he says, but as yet there has been nothing definite along this line.

Tennis Tourney Finals Saturday On UK Courts

By Boyd Keenan

Forty-five men began play in the men's singles event of the Lexington Open Tennis Tournament, Tuesday afternoon at Downing Tennis Courts. Men's doubles, women's singles, and mixed doubles were started Wednesday and Thursday. Finals in all events are scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Drawing more out-of-town entrants than any Lexington tournament in recent years, the tourney is expected to foster such interest in the coming Blue Grass tournament as to make it the largest tennis enterprise ever staged in the city.

Sergius Leach, men's singles defending champion, was seeded first in the tournament. However, several players swept through their opponents in the opening matches as if to serve notice on Leach that his crown is in danger.

Foremost in the fans' eyes were Wilson Evans and Jackie Byrd, seeded second and third respectively. Evans represents Berea while Byrd journeys here from Shelbyville.

Byrd's first round opponent was Billy Evans who went down to defeat by the scores of 6-3, 6-0. The former Kentucky high school champ was pressed hard by Lyman Farrington before winning 8-6, 9-7, in the second round.

Heading a list of local reliables who were impressive in early victories was Danny Dickerson. Top man on the University tennis team, Dickerson drew Billy Sullivan in the first round, and the match required three sets before Dickerson smashed back the final point.

From the fan's viewpoint the outstanding match of the second round was a three-set marathon between Dickerson and Alex Parker of Maysville. The set scores were 10-8, 7-9, and 8-6, with Dickerson coping the victory.

The first afternoon resembled a field day for the University tennis team as Dickerson, Tommy Asbury, Dick Meadows, Elmer Reusch, Bob Collins, and Paul King, all team members, were victorious in the first round.

Last year's doubles champs, Lyman Farrington and Danny Dickerson, are not paired together this year, but the team of Farrington and Leach was seeded first. Dickerson is teaming with Paul King this year.

Marjorie Roselle was seeded first in the women's division. Leading a large group of women contestants were Marjorie Murray, Julia Ann Waters, Greta Rogers, and Celeste Offutt, winner of the recent Idle Hour Club tourney.

Mixed doubles promised to provide close and novel competition with Sergius Leach and Marjorie Murray tabbed early in the meet as the team to beat.

SAE, Tipplers, Kinkead Unbeaten In IM Softball

By John Marcum

Play in intramural softball this past week left three teams as possible favorites in the summer round-robin tournament. With most of the teams using men who are not members of their regular organizations, Sigma Alpha Epsilon (2-0), the Tipplers (2-0), and Kinkead Hall (1-0) led intramural softball play by being the only teams remaining undefeated.

Play began Thursday, July 1, with Sigma Alpha Epsilon beating out Sigma Nu, 6-1, and Alpha Gamma Rho dropping one to the Triangles by forfeit. On Monday, Alpha Tau Omega beat the Sigma Eps, 9-2, and the Tipplers walloped Triangle, 13-5.

Tuesday, SAE downed Kinkead Hall, 5-3. Sigma Nu's game with Alpha Gamma Rho was rescheduled for Thursday afternoon.

Wednesday's games saw the Tipplers down Alpha Tau Omega, 3-2, and the Law School brush the Sig Eps, 8-4.

Sigma Phi Epsilon met the Tipplers yesterday at 4:00, and Sigma Nu faced Alpha Gamma Rho at 5:15. Today's card sees Alpha Tau Omega and Alpha Gamma Rho match each other at 4:00, and the Triangles tangle with SAE at 3:15.

Bill McCubbin, IM director, has not as yet announced the softball schedule for next week.

Team standings as of Wednesday were the Tipplers and Sigma Alpha Epsilon each with 2-0, the Law School with 1-0, Alpha Tau Omega and the Triangles with 1-1, Alpha Gamma Rho, Sigma Nu and Kinkead Hall with 0-1, and Sigma Phi Epsilon with 0-2.

Play Of Cat Reserves Against 66ers Praised

Play of the Kentucky substitutes was an important factor in holding the Cats together. Dale Barnstable, subbing at guard for the ailing Beard, scored 10 timely points and proved himself useful all over the court. Ray Lumpp, the NYU star, lefty Jim Line, and of course, Joe Holland, all played brilliantly in relief roles. Observers have expressed the belief that Holland has played the best ball of his career during the past three weeks.

Vince Boryla, starting at Cliff Barker's forward berth while the latter played guard, scored 13 points and was a giant under the boards.

Just a word about "Bud"

Browning, youthful coach of the Phillips 66'ers, who will be the head basketball mentor of the U. S. Olympic team in the coming World tournament in London this summer.

Under Browning the Oilers have won the AAU crown five straight years. Since taking over the reins of the Bartlesville, Oklahoma basketball team, the 66'ers have won 227 games, while losing only 20. Browning, a native of Enid, Okla., was a former cage star with the University of Oklahoma, the Kansas City Stage Liners, and the Phillips quintets.
